

Andrew Feldman, Institutional Coordinator, Luna Community College

Dr. Andrew Feldman is the Institutional Coordinator (IC) at Luna Community College (Luna CC) in Las Vegas, New Mexico. Andy came on board 2 ½ years ago as a faculty member and has served as the Academic Director for the Dept. of Science, Mathematics, and Engineering Technology for the past six months. Andy earned the B.S. in Geology in 1997 (with Honors) and the Ph.D. in Geology from Florida State University in 2004. His research interests include Micropaleontology, Climate Change, and Alternative Energy Solutions. The New Mexico AMP events and activities that Andy coordinates at Luna CC include the College Night Event, the New Mexico AMP Awards Banquet, SMET 101, and the Undergraduate Research Assistants (URA) program. After living in Las Vegas a short time, Andy said the political “bug” bit him, and he became active in many of the issues that affect the town. In March of 2008, Andy was elected City Councilor in Ward 3 for a four-year term. He also holds the office of President of the Las Vegas Community Water Board. Andy and his wife Barbara parent three dogs, two Siberian huskies and one black and tan coon-hound, and they also enjoy motorcycling and Alpine Skiing. Andy also enjoys playing the guitar when the mood hits him and he has free time.