

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Alcohol Poisoning

- Do not leave the person alone. BAC can still rise after the person has passed out.
- Place the person in the fetal position and on their side so they don't throw up in their mouth
- Coffee and/or food will not sober the person up, only TIME will.
- Do not put them in a cold shower. This could cause the person to go into shock.

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

Call 911 right away if the person is:

- Unconscious and cannot be woken up, or can only be awakened for a short time
- Poorly aware of surroundings
- Having trouble breathing including slow labored breathing. 10 breaths per minute or less is a MEDICAL EMERGENCY
- Cold, clammy, and has bluish skin
- Vomiting while semiconscious or unconscious

